ARNDT'S TRUE CHRISTIANITY.—A treatise on Sincere Repentance, True Faith, the Holy Walk of the Christian, etc. By the venerable JOHN ARNDT, of blessed memory. Perhaps the greatest work on practical and spiritual religion ever written. A new American edition, revised, corrected and furnished with additional matter from the original German, together with a full and complete Introduction. By CHARLES F. SCHAEFFER, D.D., Professor of Theology in the Philadelphia Lutheran Seminary. Four books in one elegant volume.

This is one of the very greatest and most useful practical books produced by Protestantism. Though written more than two hundred years ago, it is still unsurpassed in its department. It stands out with marked and superior distinction in the modern ages. Next to the Bible and Luther's Small Catechism, it has been more frequently printed, more widely read, and more influential for good than any other book, perhaps, that has ever been written. Boehm has not exaggerated, when he says that its effects, in the conversion of souls, have been such, that an account of them would make a history in itself. Dr. Worthington, of England, assigned it the first rank among devotional writings.

Plain cloth, substantially bound, $4.00. Extra beveled boards, red edges, $5.00. Turkey morocco, antique, gilt edges, $8.00. Extra calf, red edges, $8.00.

Standard English edition of this great Confession. By CHARLES P. KRAUTH, D.D. Price 80 cts.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF CHRISTIAN ETHICS.—The first part of the System of Christian Ethics. By CHR. FR. SCHMID, D.D., Professor of Theology in Tübingen University, Germany. Abridged by W. J. Mann, D.D., Professor in the Evangelical Lutheran Seminary, and pastor of Zion's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philadelphia. Price, $1.25.

JANUARY.

"If St. Paul's day be fair and clear,
It does betide a happy year;
But if it chance to snow or rain,
Then will be dear all kinds of grain."

That Serpent.

There was a wonderful truth taught in the goblet which the genius of a heathen fashioned. Having made a model of a serpent, he fixed it in the bottom of the cup. Coiling for the spring, a pair of gleaming eyes in its head, and in its open mouth fangs raised to strike, it lay beneath the ruby wine. He who raised the cup to his lips to quench his thirst and quaff the wine, could not see what lay beneath, till, as he reached the dregs, that dreadful head rose up and glistened before his eyes. So when life's cup is nearly emptied, and sin's last pleasure quaffed, and the bitter dregs are being drained, shall rise the ghastly terrors of remorse, and judgment upon the despairing soul. Be assured, a serpent lurks at the bottom of guilt's sweetest pleasures.

Good Promises.

Some one has said, in substance, that the broad road to destruction is paved with good resolutions. Most of these good resolutions are made about this season of the year. Good old Andrew Fuller said, "Lord, I do discover a fallacy, whereby I have long deceived myself, which is this: I have desired to begin my amendment from my birthday, or some other eminent festival, that so my repentance might bear some remarkable date. But when those days were come I have adjourned my amendment to some other time. Thus while I could not agree with myself when to start, I have almost lost the running of the race. I am resolved thus to befool myself no longer. I see no day but to-day. The instant time is always the fittest time." If we have postponed the execution of good resolutions until this new year we venture to say that the season has not brought with it that talismanic power to make us stronger and better which we anticipated. There are pleasant interesting associations connected with New Years, and birth days, but they have no renovating or reforming influence in themselves. There is a proverb that "He who chooses the best has the best all the time." He who makes the wisest and most profitable use of the present hour gets the most out of every hour. Life is a stream upon which we can make but one voyage. There is no ebb in the tide to carry us back to revisit the scenes which have given us most pleasure, or to gather the treasures which we neglected to secure when they were within our reach. The past is gone forever; the future lies before us, hidden from view by the windings of the river, and only opening to our sight as we glide along and round each point.

"I see not a step before me as I tread the days of a year;
But the past is still in God's keeping—the future His mercy shall clear,
And what looks dark in the distance may brighten as I draw near."

—Paul D. Van Cleef, D. D.

If I be in Christ—What Then?

I am safe, whatever this present year may bring; nay, my night is far spent, my day is at hand. The wilderness is nearly traversed; Canaan and Jerusalem are almost within my view; the summits of the everlasting hills are already appearing. What manner of person, then, ought I to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hastening unto the coming of the day of God? I must press forward; and so much the more as I see the day approaching. I must be consistent and heavenly-minded, so walking worthy of my calling, and setting my affections on things above. For what have I, who have a crown in prospect, a kingdom in reversion, to do with the vanities or pleasures of this poor, passing world? My eye is above; my treasure is in heaven; shall not my heart be there also? If I am in Christ, I must seek to be like Him, and to follow Him more and more closely, as the night is hastening to an end, and the day about to break. If I am in sorrow, I shall call to mind that weeping endureth but for a night, joy cometh in the morning. If I am in comfort, I must see that this prosperity which God has given me is making me a holier man, and a more self-denying worker for Him who loved me and washed me from my sins in His own blood. If I am poor, I shall rejoice that my day of wealth is just at hand. If I am rich, I shall take this gold which my Lord has given me and lay it all at His beloved feet. Mine must be no half discipleship—no service of two masters—no divided heart: The night is far spent, the day is at hand. What remains of this brief life of mine must be given wholly to the Lord.—H. Bonar, D. D.

FEBRUARY.

Now shifting gales with milder influence blow,
Cloud o'er the skies, and melt the falling snow;
The softened earth with fertile moisture teems,
And, freed from icy bonds, down rush the swelling streams.

The Mysteries of Providence.

The appointed path is often a dark path, and the way in which the Lord leads us, enshrouded in shade and mystery. What then? We are to march boldly on in the course of duty, and trust the Lord to care for consequences, and bring all things right at last. And we are under no obligation to understand the drift and bearing of all things that surround us. It is enough to know that all things are working together for our good. Even Abraham "went out, not knowing whither he went," yet guided by the counsel of his God. We cannot tell why our present lot is so portioned out to us, nor what God means by all the providences which He appoints. It belongs not to us to know the hidden purposes of Him who made us.

"Will you ask the soldier thrown into the heat of the battle, to explain the plan of the general? How could he? If he has done his duty, if he has thrown himself into the struggle, he has only seen the disorder of the charge, the flashing of the arms, the cloud of smoke and dust; he has only heard human cries mixed with the deafening sound of artillery. To him all was disorder and chaos; but upon the neighboring heights one eye followed the combat; one hand directed the least movement of the troops. So there is a battle which is pursued through the ages. It is that of truth, of love, and justice, against error, egotism and iniquity. It belongs not to obscure soldiers thrown into the fight to direct the contest, it ought to suffice us that God conducts it; it is for us to remain at the post He assigns us, and to struggle there firmly, even unto the end."

And when we look back from the heights of triumph—to which we now turn our eyes with longing and with hope—when we trace the well-remembered path, along which God hath led our feet from warfare to victory, and from weariness to rest; all will be plain, and clear, and blessed in the presence of Him who has said: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter."

True Gentleness.

True gentleness is founded on a sense of what we owe to Him who made us, and to the common nature in which we all share. It arises from reflection on our own failings and wants; and from just views of the condition and duty of man. It is a native feeling heightened and improved by principle. It is the heart which easily relents, which feels for everything that is human, and is backward and slow to inflict the least wound. It is affable in its address and mild in its demeanor, ever ready to oblige and willing to be obliged by others, breathing habitual kindness towards friends, courtesy to strangers, long-suffering to enemies. It exercises authority with moderation, administers reproof with tenderness, confers favors with ease and modesty. It is unassuming in opinion, and temperate in zeal. It contends not eagerly about trifles, is slow to contradict, and still slower to blame; but prompt to allay dissension and to restore peace. It neither intermeddles unnecessarily with the affairs, nor pries inquisitively into the secrets of others. It delights, above all things, to alleviate distress, and if it cannot dry up the falling tear, to soothe at least the grieving heart. Where it has not the power of being useful it is never burdensome; it seeks to please rather than to shine and dazzle, and conceals with care that superiority either of talent or of rank which is oppressive to those who are beneath it. In a word, it is that spirit, and that tenor of manners, which the Gospel of Christ enjoins when it commands us to "bear one another's burdens;" "to rejoice with those who rejoice, and weep with those who weep;" "to please every one his neighbor for his good;" "to be kind and tender-hearted;" "to be pitiful and courteous;" "to support the weak, and to be patient towards all men."—Dr. Blair.

The Higher Life.

That Christianity has its higher life is not denied. There have been in its history many lives in which faith and hope have been triumphant. This, however, has not been because of any assurance of sinless perfection, or assumptions of special possession of the spirit. They have had the promises and privileges common to all Christians; but they have more faithfully improved them, and so have grown in grace and in the knowledge of God their Saviour, to a degree that placed the reality of their Christian character beyond all doubt, that assured them of acceptance in Christ, and of their enjoyment through Him of the blessings of salvation. All who have this assurance can rejoice in the hope of the glory of God.

MARCH.

Sowe peason and beans in the wane of the Moone,
Who soweth them sooner, he soweth too soone;
That they, with the planet, may rest and rise,
And flourish with bearing, most plentiful wise.

Lie Never.

Not long ago, on an English steamer, four days out from Liverpool, a small boy was found hid away behind the cargo. He had neither father nor mother, brother nor sister, friend nor protector among either passengers or crew. Who was he? Where did he come from? Where going? Only nine years old; the poor little stranger, with ragged clothes, but a beautiful face, full of innocence and truth! Of course he was carried before the first mate.

"How came you to steal a passage on board this ship?" asked the mate, sharply.

"My stepfather put me in," answered the boy; "he said he could not afford to keep me or pay my passage to Halifax, where my aunt lives. I want to go to my aunt."

The mate did not believe the story. He had often been deceived by stow-aways. Almost every ship finds, one or two days out at sea, men or boys concealed among the cargo, who try to get a passage across the water without paying for it. And this is often troublesome and expensive. The mate suspected some of the sailors had a hand in the boy's escape, and treated him pretty roughly. Day after day he was questioned about his coming, and it was always the same story—nothing less, nothing more. At last the mate got out of patience, as mates will, and seizing him by the collar told him unless he confessed the truth, in ten minutes, he would hang him on the yard arm—a frightful threat indeed.

Poor child, with not a friend to stand by him! Around him were passengers and sailors of the mid-day watch, and before him the stern first officer, with his watch in hand, counting the tick, tick, tick of the minutes as they swiftly went. There he stood, pale and sorrowful, his head erect, and tears in his eyes; but afraid?—no, not a bit! Eight minutes were already gone.

"Only two minutes more to live," cried the mate. "Speak the truth and save your life, boy."

"May I pray? asked the child, looking up into the hard man's face.

The officer nodded his head, but said nothing. The brave boy knelt down on deck, and, with hands clasped and eyes raised to heaven, repeated the Lord's prayer, and then prayed the dear Lord Jesus to take him home to heaven. He could die; but lie—never! All eyes were turned toward him, and sobs broke from stern hearts.

The mate could hold out no longer. He sprang to the boy, told him he believed his story, every word of it. A nobler sight never took place on a ship's deck than this—a poor unfriended child, willing to face death for truth's sake.

He could die; but lie—never! God bless him! And the rest of the voyage, you may well think, he had friends enough. Nobody owned him before; everybody was now ready to do him a kindness. And everybody who reads this will be strengthened to do right, come what will, by the noble conduct of this dear child.

Simple Faith.

"God always hears when we scrape the bottom of a flour barrel." So said the child of a poor widow to his mother, one morning, after she had prayed as only the needy can, "Give us this day our daily bread." Beautiful faith of childhood! Why may it not be ours? God always hears the prayers of His children, and He knows when to answer. Our spiritual as well as temporal wants are known to Him, and every sincere cry for help enters His compassionate ear. When we feel entirely our dependence on Him; when our stock of pride and self-confidence is exhausted; when earthly friends and earthly comforts fail us; the humble cry of "O my Father," the oftenest brings the speedy answer, "Here, my child." God always hears when we have reached the depth of need, and cry to Him for help.

Going to Hear.

I do not know a more painful sensation, or any expression which grates more harshly on one's ears, than when a person tells you that he is going to church "to hear Mr. Such-a-one." It proves so entire a want of right feeling with regard to the true object of assembling in God's house, and so utter a forgetfulness of the holy worship which is due to Him, that one cannot but have a fearful suspicion with regard to the spiritual condition of one who speaks so irreverently.

APRIL.

All day the low-hung clouds have dropt
Their garnered fulness down;
All day that soft gray mist hath wrapt
Hill, valley, grove, and town.

Be Frank.

Never deceive for the sake of a foolish jest or to excite the laughter of a few companions at the expense of a friend. Be anxious when you relate anything to tell it just as it occurred. Never vary in the least degree. The reason why our ears are so often saluted by false reports is because people in telling real things add a little to them, and as they pass through a dozen mouths the original stories are turned into something entirely different. So when you attempt to tell anything that you have seen with your own eyes, relate it correctly in every particular, and as you grow older you will reap the advantages of this course.

Do It With Thy Might.

If we have any work to do the true policy is to go on and do it. The longer we hesitate, permitting ourselves to grow lethargic and dreary over its unnecessary consideration, the more sure we are to fail. There are dozens of men who fail in the labor given them to do because they dawdle over its beginning, and slothfully follow up its details. The Bible rule, which instructs us to do what we have to do "with our might," is one of large application, and if it were followed more universally there would be fewer disappointments among men and fewer disasters to the cause of truth.

Study Doctrine.

Suffer us to urge upon all Christians the importance of the systematic study of the great truths of the Christian revelation. They should be able to give an answer to every one that asketh a reason of the hope that is in them. Amid the engrossing pursuits of business, the excitements of political strife, and the duties and attractions of the social circle, some moments should be devoted to the study of that system of truth to which they profess to hold. We would also plead for a more faithful training of our children in these truths. For we are confident that our whole duty to God, to our country, and our age, cannot be met by a piety which is not based on settled, consistent knowledge of God's Word. The truths of that Word, the science of Christianity, underlie every interest of society; and there are disorganizing elements at work, industriously and vigorously, both in Church and State, which cannot be checked and defeated but by those who not only are firm believers in Divine truth, but are "able to give an answer to every man who asketh a reason for the hope that is in them, with meekness and fear."

Cross and Crown.

"Will I venture nothing, suffer nothing, for the 'crown of glory that fadeth not away?' My dog will follow my horse's heels from morning till night, take many a weary step through mire and dirt, rather than leave me, though at night all he gets by it is but bones and blows. If my soul had any true greatness, any sparks of generosity in it, how would it despise the sufferings of the way for the glory of the end! How would it break down all difficulties before it, whilst by an eye of faith it sees the Forerunner, who is already entered, standing as it were upon the walls of heaven, with the crown in His hand, saying, 'He that overcometh shall inherit all things.' Come on, then, my soul; come on."—Flavel.

Living to Purpose.

I see too many men willing to live to no purpose, caring only to be rid of time on what terms soever, making it the only scope of their life to live:—a disposition that may well befit brute creatures, which are not capable of any other aim save merely their own preservation; but for men that enjoy the privilege of reason, for Christians that pretend a title to religion, too base and unworthy. Where God hath bestowed these higher faculties, He looks for other improvements; for what a poor thing it is only to live; a thing common to us with the most despised vermin that breed on our corruption? but to live for some excellent end is that which reason suggests, and religion perfects.—Bishop Hall.

"Religion," said a seafaring man at the North End Mission, one Sunday evening, "has made me love my mother, from whom I ran away when a boy; and provide for my child, whom I treated with cruelty and neglect in his early years." This was a testimony practical and to the point.

MAY.

How fresh the breeze that wafts the rich perfume,
And swells the melody of waking birds!
The hum of bees beneath the verdant grove,
And woodman's song, and low of distant herds!

Afflictions.

Luther was wont to say, three things made a good minister; temptation, affliction, supplication. The same also conduce much to the making of a good Christian. And indeed, 'tis seldom that ever a soul comes to any eminency in grace, until he has been exercised with sanctified afflictions and temptations. And doubtless, there is many a soul who may and must say, the next to Christ, his afflictions have, through His grace and blessing, been His best mercies. O how should this draw souls to Christ, and allure them into a marriage covenant with Him! Poor soul, it may be that which keeps thee from Christ is the fear of what affliction thou mayest meet with in His ways. But know (1) thou mayest meet with affliction, yea, first or last thou wilt assuredly meet with affliction though thou never closest with Christ. Alas! wicked men and unbelievers meet with troubles and afflictions, and that even in this world ofttimes. However, to be sure at last, they will have a full cup, yea, the very dregs of God's wrath poured out into them. (2) Whatever afflictions thou mayest meet withal in the way of Christ, closing with Him, He sweetens all for thee: and that so as thou wouldst not have been without them for a world! Oh! scare not at the cross, but close in with Christ.—E. Pearse, 1673.

About Hating.

Hate not. It is not worth while. Your life is not long enough to make it pay to cherish ill will or hard thoughts toward any one. What if that man has cheated you or that woman has played you false? What if this friend has forsaken you in your time of need, or that one, having won your utmost confidence, your warmest love, has concluded that he prefers to consider and treat you as a stranger? Let it all pass. What difference will it make to you in a few years, when you go hence to the "undiscovered country?" All who treat you wrongly now will be more sorry for it then, than you, even in your deepest disappointment and grief, can be. A few more smiles, a few more tears, some pleasure, much pain, a little longer hurrying and worrying in the world, some hasty greetings and abrupt farewells, and life will be over, and the injurer and injured will be led away, and ere long forgotten. Is it worth while to hate each other?

Work for God.

You are a manufacturer, a merchant, a mechanic, a man of leisure, a clerk, a student, or a sewing woman. God wants each one of you to serve Him where you are. You have your business? Use it for God. Order it in a godly manner. Do not allow any wickedness in it. Give godly wages; preach Christ to your clerks, not by a long face, but by being like Him, doing good. Use your profits for God, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, visiting the sick, comforting the wretched, spreading the Gospel far and wide What a field you have to glorify God in just where you are! If you have nothing else, use your tools for Him; He can glorify Himself with them as easily as He could with a shepherd's stick, an ox goad, a sling, or two mites.

Keep Straight Ahead.

Pay no attention to slanderers and gossip-mongers. Keep straight on in your course, and let their backbiting die the death of neglect. What is the use of lying awake at nights brooding over the remark of some false friend, that runs through your brain like lightning! What is the use of getting into a worry and fret over gossip that has been set afloat to your disadvantage by some meddlesome busybody who has more time than character? The things cannot possibly injure you unless, indeed, you take notice of them, and in combating them give them standing and character. If what is said about you is true, set yourself right; if it is false, let it go for what it will fetch. If a bee sting you, would you go to the hive to destroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? It is wisdom to say little respecting the injuries you have received. We are generally losers in the end, if we stop to refute all backbiting and gossiping we may hear by the way. They are annoying, it is true, but not dangerous, so long as we do not stop to expostulate and scold. Our characters are formed and sustained by ourselves.

Discipline.

The gold of the sanctuary must be tried before it is accepted; and is thrown into the fire, not because it is of no value, but because it is so precious.

JUNE.

O, cease with delight to survey the proud Rose,
Whose soft leaves must too soon feel decay!
For, ah! the dark wind, as it churlishly blows.
At our feet all its honors shall lay.

Too Near the World.

The lines between the church and the world have become very faint. They must be retraced and distinctly marked. All who will be on the Lord's side must step over from the world and there stay. On this subject the pulpits of the land must give no uncertain sound; and out of the pulpit a steady, strong, but merciful hand of discipline must be felt by all who are living too near the world. Many are, perhaps, afraid to administer discipline. Well, to all such God speaks terribly in His Word. If we see the sword coming and fail to warn, we must bear the blood of the slain. Only a pure Church can be a strong Church, and a Church can be pure only when its members are far away from the world and very near to Christ. "There is no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh but after the Spirit." "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God."

Reader, have you not been living too near to the world?

The Kindness of Little Things.

We may observe the kindness of Jesus in little things. He who could heal the sick and raise the dead by His word, yet always shows Himself mindful of the least attentions, courtesies, and charities of every-day life. While nothing that is both great and merciful is beyond His power, nothing that is both little and kind is too small for His love. The washing of the disciples' feet was not necessary, but it was a loving act on His part, and contributed to their comfort. Over and above what is required and expected of a child, there are a thousand kindnesses that he can render to parents, brothers, sisters, schoolmates, neighbors. Let the child be taught to be on the watch for opportunities of service, especially to the aged, the poor, the neglected, and those younger than himself; and if there are things to be done for others that might seem irksome, disagreeable, or humiliating, let him remember Him, the Lord of men and of angels, who never thought anything beneath Him which could be of comfort or benefit to any human being.

Religion the Great Business.

Unless I make religion my great and ever-abiding concern, I shall be a stranger to all solid peace and enjoyment. I have at times caught a glimpse of the comfort which it yields to the spirit when I merge my will into God's will, when I resolve to have no will of my own separate from God. I feel quite assured that this renunciation of self and entire devotion to God's service would give a simplicity and grandeur to my existence; would throw an unclouded sunshine over all my ways; would raise me above the cares and provocations of this life; would enhance even my sensible gratifications, and superadd those gratifications of a higher order which constitute the main and essential blessedness of heaven. O my God, may it be thus with me! Call me out of nature's darkness into Thine own marvelous light! Give me to aspire after the graces, and to hold forth to my acquaintances and above all to my children the example of all righteousness. Conform me to the Gospel economy, under which I sit, that as Christ died for sin I may die to it; that as He rose again, I may rise to newness of life, and feel it my meat and drink to do Thy will.—Dr. Chalmers.

Rejoicing.

Christians are to "rejoice all the day." Each day brings its own trials, its own dangers, its own necessities, its own temptations; and there must be a daily feeding upon Christ if we would daily rejoice in Him. The food we ate yesterday is not the food of to-day; and so the grace given yesterday is not the grace for to-day. We need a daily supply of spiritual strength for our souls, as we do food for our bodies. Therefore the prayer "Give us this day our daily bread," applies to both. And we may depend upon it God will give strength for the day. If we are called to suffer He will give us suffering grace; if we are called to die, He will give us dying grace. He will give us grace when it is needed; why should He give it before? Have we not found it so in our past experience? The trials we most feared have come upon us, and yet we have been sustained; we have been a wonder to ourselves. And while we pass the days of our sojourning here in His fear, we shall see enough of God's goodness to cause us to rejoice evermore."—Canon Bardsley.

JULY.

In this month is St. Swithin's Day;
On which, if that it rain, they say
Full forty days after it will,
Or more or less, some rain distil.

Enemies.

Have you enemies? Go straight on and mind them not. If they block up your path, walk around them, and do your duty regardless of their spite. A man who has no enemies is seldom good for anything; he is made of that kind of material which is so easily worked, that every one has a hand in it. A sterling character—one who thinks for himself, and speaks what he thinks—is always sure to have enemies. They are as necessary to him as fresh air; they keep him alive and active. A celebrated character who was surrounded with enemies, used to remark—"They are sparks which, if you do not blow, will go out of themselves." Let this be your feeling while endeavoring to live down the scandal of those who are bitter against you. If you stop to dispute, you do as they desire, and open the way for more abuse. Let the poor fellows talk; there will be a reaction if you perform but your duty, and hundreds who were once alienated from you will flock to you and acknowledge their error.

Small Duties and Small Sins.

Small duties compensate by their repetition for what is wanting in their importance. We are not called daily to make great sacrifices. We are seldom required to set up the standard of the Cross in barbarous climes, to dare executioners, to triumph in sufferings. Rarely are we called to the great actions that make heroes; to die for our neighbors; to devote ourselves for our country.

Thanks be to God, we are also seldom tempted to commit great crimes; to betray a trust, to make a sale of justice, or to persecute innocence. But in what moment of each day do we not meet with occasions to commit little sins, and to perform duties comparatively small? Are we confined at home? We have little inconveniences to suffer, little perverse humors to bear with, little provocations to impatience to resist, little disgusts to endure. Are we in company? We have, it may be, captious tempers to manage, idle reports to discountenance, pernicious maxims to combat, profane actions to censure. Do we prosper? What a source of little duties is prosperity, if we sincerely love virtue, and what a source of little sins, if we are not vigilant against temptations to vice? Are we in sickness? How many miserable comforters! How many distasteful remedies! What grievous wearinesses! So many occasions to perform little duties, and to commit little sins. Opportunities to commit these return every day and hour, I may almost say every moment. A little sin is a little poison, slow indeed, but continually insinuating itself into the soul, till by degrees it may issue in death. A man who does not watch against such, is liable to provoke God as often as the continual occasion to commit them presents itself. On the contrary, a man who makes conscience of practicing little duties as well as great ones, finds, every day and every hour, opportunities of evincing his faith and love. He has not a religion only of peculiar times and circumstances, which is sometimes justly suspected; but a religion which diffuses itself into every part of his life. By his attention to every little duty, he discharges the greatest of all duties, that which St. Paul prescribes to all Christians: "Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."—Saurin.

Cheer Your Minister.

At a fire in London, a little child was in danger of being burned. All had been saved, when it was found that the child was forgotten. No one dared to go back, for the flames shot out from every window. But a noble fireman went up the ladder; a sudden gust of hot smoke made him pause. They saw it from below. "Let us give him a cheer," said some one. A great hurrah went up. The man heard, he rushed into the burning house, and brought forth the child in his arms, and delivered it to the mother, who pressed it to her bosom. That fireman would not have had the courage, doubtless, for so heroic and daring a deed, had he not been cheered on by the crowd. So, I say, give a cheer to your minister.

Success.

If we wish to stand firmly in our places as Christians, we must be willing to look all about us. The past must be studied, that we may learn its lessons; the future must be contemplated, that we may know its duties and responsibilities; and the present must be cultivated according to the light thus obtained from its boundaries. He who forgets any part of this great study of life cannot be successful as he ought to be.—Ex.

AUGUST.

Not yet the dust had shunned the unequal strife,
But aided by the wind, fought still, for life:
And, wafted with its foe by violent gust,
'Twas doubtful which was rain, and which was dust.

God's People Safe.

On the island of Lifu is a species of hawk called the Utru, which is very destructive to tame poultry as well as to wild birds. The natives have an ingenious device for thinning their numbers. In the middle of a large cage is tied a good-sized chicken, well supplied with scraped cocoa-nut, and surrounded with a series of slip nooses made of strong cocoanut fibre. The cage is then set on top of a cocoa-nut tree, and watched from a distance. In a short time the chirp of the chicken attracts the hawk, which vainly endeavors to secure its victim. After a time the Utru enters the cage, and, while madly rushing upon the fowl, is caught in a noose and strangled.

A native Polynesian preacher, referring to this in a sermon, said, "This hawk aptly typifies Satan, who is ever seeking to destroy unwary souls. But the believer is encircled by the good hand of God, resolved to secure his safety, and continually feeds on the divine promises. In seeking the destruction of the child of God, Satan is sure to be defeated and put to shame."

The Pardoned Sinner.

He easily looks down from on high on all the empty titles and false images of earthly happiness, and when he is bereaved of them all, yea, and beset on every side with what the world calls misfortunes and afflictions, ceases not to be happy. In sorrow he is joyful, in poverty rich, and in chains free; when he seems buried deep, so that not one ray of the sun can reach him, he is surrounded with radiant lustre; when overwhelmed with ignominy he glories; and in death itself he lives, he conquers, he triumphs. What can be heavy to that man who is eased of the intolerable burden of sin? How animated was that saying of Luther, "Smite, Lord, smite; for Thou hast absolved me from my sins!" Whose anger should he fear who knows that God is propitious to him, that supreme King, whose wrath is indeed the messenger of death, but the light of His countenance is life; who gladdens all by the rays of His favor, and by one smile disperses the darkest clouds, and calms the most turbulent tempest?—Leighton.

An Earnest Life.

Earnestness does not always move with a clatter. There are other things in this world which are quite as pleasant and edifying as the rub-a-dub-dub of a drum. In fact, this kind of melody is not generally the highest style of music. Have you never known a man bustling and officious, and clamorous and loud, but who did not weigh heavy after all—a thing very well understood by every one except just the man who might have profited by that piece of information? And have you never known a man quiet and unostentatious and faithful, who was a perpetual blessing—a golden man, deep-souled and true, whose memory lingered long after he was gone, like light upon the hills after a gorgeous sunset?

The shallow stream rattles along its course; but when it is met and drowned by the majestic tides rolling in from the seas, there is silence on the hills. In the great tide there is power of more than a hundred rivulets, yet its coming is almost as quiet as the celestial forces that bring it. The tide flows down, and shallow grows the stream, and again the empty clattering goes on. And this is what I wish to say, that things most potent, although demonstrative, as indeed they must be from their effects, are not necessarily noisy. A strong, earnest life needs not make what people are in the habit of calling "a fuss." It is better to be known by the lead that strikes, than by the bang of the gun that sends it.

Intermittent Religion.

An intermittent religious life is both unprofitable and dangerous. The steady gale bears the ship most directly and safely to port; gusts and hurricanes forebode shipwreck, and ruin of all on board. The true type of religion is the well of water "springing up to everlasting life." The grace of God, received into the soul, becomes a permanent religious force operating steadily and beneficially along the whole line of our earthly activities. By such steady and consistent endeavors the most is made of the opportunities of life, and the utmost security is guaranteed against the surprises and onsets of the enemy. The sail kept well in hand, the storm never takes you unawares. The strong current of religious experience bears your bark steadily to the port.

PUBLICATIONS

OF THE

LUTHERAN BOOK-STORE.

THE DOCTRINAL THEOLOGY OF THE EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH, Set Forth and Illustrated from the Original Sources. By HEINRICH SCHMID, D. D., Professor in the University of Erlangen, Bavaria. Translated from the Fifth Edition. In the work of translation, the translators kept most of the original authorities at hand, studying all obscure and doubtful passages in the light of the context in which they stand. They have added nothing except such apparatus as will facilitate its use as a book of reference, viz., a fuller table of contents, a brief biographical account of the authors from whose writings the body of the work has been taken, a glossary of scholastico-theological terms (taken from Luthardt's Compendium), and a more extended and specific index. Any one who desires to know what the genuine Lutheran Church really teaches, will here find the whole matter most faithfully presented. It is one of the most ready helps, and is a library of our old dogmaticians in itself. Price per copy, net, $6.00; by mail, $6.50.

CHURCH SONG: A New Book of Church Music. By Rev. JOSEPH A. SEISS, D. D., Pastor of the Church of the Holy Communion, Philadelphia, Pa., and CHARLES PILLING ENGELMANN, Organist of the same.

PART I. MUSICAL RESPONSES, CHANTS, ETC. Adapted to the Liturgy, Canticles, and Psalms of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Bound separately. Pp. 75. 4to. Price, 75 cents; with postage, 80 cents.

PART II. METRICAL TUNES. Adapted to the Church Book of the General Council, the Book of Worship of the General Synod (South), and the Book of Worship of the General Synod (North); with "A Service for the Lord's Supper." Bound separately. Pp. 148. 4to. Price, $1.00; with postage, $1.10.

PARTS I. and II., bound together in one. Pp. 223. 4to. Price, $1.75; with postage, $1.85. No deduction on orders for less than fifty copies.

This is a compact, convenient, and beautiful book, well bound in English cloth, limp, with red edges. It claims to possess superior merits in the character and arrangements of its music, and in special adaptation to the wants of our churches, choirs, and leaders of this department of worship.

LUTHER AS A HYMNIST. By Rev. BERNARD PICK. This little volume is a compilation of translations of Luther's hymns, from various sources. Some of the best known hymns have been given in more than one version; to some are also added some historical facts. Price, $1.25.

Luther's songs are history. Says Coleridge: "Luther did as much for the Reformation by his hymns as by his translation of the Bible. In Germany, the hymns are known by heart by every peasant." A modern writer says: "The children learned Luther's hymns in the cottage, and martyrs sang them on the scaffold."
